

List of Livestock Photographers

Photographs of each lot must be submitted by Friday 17th May to sarah@traditionalherefords.net.

If you are not able to take high-quality (min. 300dpi) photographs, please use a professional cattle photographer, such as one of those listed below.

Please remember that this will be a very busy time of year for livestock photography, therefore early booking will be essential.

Tips for getting the best results from a professional livestock photo session:

- Ensure animals are ready when the photographer arrives, in an area where they can shoot both close up and from a distance. It is not usually possible to get good photographs of cattle indoors, therefore a tidy field or paddock where animals can be contained and moved around several times without running too far away each time is often best.
- Washing/clipping/dressing of cattle is not necessary if you wish to present your animals in a natural state, however they should be photographed clean and free from mud/muck build up.
- If animals are not used to being haltered, photographing them loose will always be the better option as they will stand more naturally, making for a much better photo.
- Be patient! Livestock photography is a painstaking task, and animals will rarely cooperate. Listen to the photographer's directions when positioning the animal, as what you see from your angle will look different to the product coming through the lens. Allow plenty of time for the job and be prepared to move animals as many times as needed to get the right shot.

Agri Media

Chris Adamson – based in Lancashire and covering all of the UK and Ireland

Tel: 07930 225150 Email: agri.media@aol.com

MacGregor Photography

Catherine MacGregor & team – based near Stirling and covering all of the UK and Ireland

Tel: 07703 533605 Email: catherine@macgregorphotography.com

Country Girl Media

Chrissie Long – based in Herefordshire and working predominantly across England and Wales

Tel: 07909 524483 Email: chrissie@countrygirlmedia.co.uk

Hutchinson Photography

Wayne Hutchinson – based in Yorkshire and covering all of the UK

Tel: 07855 416060 Email: farmimages@btinternet.com

Agri Images

Alfie Shaw – based in Northern Ireland and covering all of the UK and Ireland

Tel: 07876 325052 Email: agriimages@btinternet.com